Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 20 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning wet in south. Drier in north. Strengthening winds.

Today:
Mainly dry, bright start. Cloud skies and outbreaks of rain extending to southern half of Scotland this morning with patchy rain further north this afternoon.The heaviest rain will be across Dumfries and Galloway. Strengthening easterly winds.

Tonight:
Mostly cloudy overnight with further outbreaks of rain. Much of the rain will be over south and east Scotland with drier weather towards West Coast and Northern Isles.

Friday:
Eastern Scotland will have a cloudy day with further rain, heaviest in the Northeast. Drier over western Scotland and Northern Isles with some bright spells. Cool with fresh northeasterly winds.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A mainly dry, bright few days over northern Scotland. Mostly dry, bright day across central and southern Scotland on Saturday, then some rain Sunday, dying out on Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.